QUALIFICATIONS

Required: Qualifications must be met at the time of application.

Qualifications for United States Probation Officers are prescribed and set forth as guidelines by the Judicial Conference of the United States. To qualify for entry at Classification Level 27, candidates must have a minimum of a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university in fields of study such as criminal justice, criminology, psychology, sociology, human relations, business, or public administration and two years of specialized experience, with at least one year equivalent to work at the CL 25 level. (See Specialized Experience below).

Specialized Experience: Specialized experience is described as progressively responsible experience gained after completion of the bachelor's degree in such fields as probation, pretrial services, parole, corrections, criminal investigations, or work in substance/addiction treatment. Experience as a police, custodial, or security officer, other than any criminal investigation experience, is not acceptable. Also, completion of a relevant master's degree (or a juris doctorate) may substitute for one (1) year specialized experience.

Preferred: Candidates must possess good writing and communication skills. Progressively responsible clerical, administrative, or technical work experience related to supervision and counseling of persons on parole, probation, or supervised release; preparation of reports or investigations of individuals.

CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT

The selected candidate must successfully complete a ten-year background investigation and every five years thereafter will be subject to an updated investigation. Prior to appointment, the selectee considered for this position will undergo a medical examination and drug screening. Upon successful completion of the medical examination and drug screening, the selectee may then be appointed provisionally pending a favorable suitability determination by the Court. In addition, as conditions of employment, the incumbent will be subject to ongoing random drug screening, and, as deemed necessary by management, may be subject to subsequent fitness-for-duty evaluations.

The duties of probation officers require the investigation and management of convicted offenders who present physical danger to probation officers and to the public. In the supervision, treatment, and control of offenders, these duties require moderate to arduous physical exercise, including prolonged periods of walking and standing, physical dexterity and coordination necessary for officer safety, and use of self-defense tactics. On a daily basis, probation officers face unusual mental and physical stress because they are subject to danger and possible harm during frequent, direct contact with individuals who are convicted of committing Federal offenses.

Because probation officers must effectively deal with physical attacks and are subject to moderate to arduous physical exertion, applicants must be physically capable. Probation officers must possess, with or without corrective lenses, good distance vision in at least one eye and the ability to read normal size print. Normal hearing ability, with or without a hearing aid, is also required. Any severe health problems, such as physical defects, disease, and deformities that constitute employment hazards to the applicant or others, may disqualify an applicant. Examples of health problems that may be disqualifying are an untreated hernia, cardiovascular disorders, serious deformities or disabilities of the extremities, mental health disorders, fainting and/or seizure disorders, metabolic disorders, bleeding disorders, pulmonary disorders, and marked speech abnormalities.

First-time appointees to positions covered under law enforcement officer retirement provisions must not have reached their 37th birthday at the time of appointment. Applicants 37 or over who have previous law enforcement officer experience under the Civil Service Retirement System or the Federal Employees' Retirement System and who have either a subsequent break in service or intervening service in a non-law enforcement officer position may have their previous law enforcement experience subtracted from their age to determine whether they meet the maximum age requirement.
